Repeal Arkansas Liquor Law May Be Started Soon

"Bone Dry" Forces May Put Question Before People

AT NOV. ELECTION

Many Inquiries Made at Attorney General's Office

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—The Arkansas Democrat said Thursday that a "bone dry" forces in Arkansas might seek repeal of the state's liquor law at the November general election.

The paper said the possibility was seen as the result of inquiries at the attorney general's office concerning signatures required on initiative and referendum petitions.

"Leaders of organized prohibition forces of the state have made inquiries," the newspaper stated, and have been "asking particularly whether signers should be qualified electors at the time they signed petitions or at the time it was to be voted on."

Showdown Is Near On Hatch Measure

Senator Says Passage Would Destroy Demo Party

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Proponents moved toward a Senate showdown on the Hatch bill to circumvent political activities of state employees paid with federal funds. They were unmoved by a warning from Senator Minton (Dem., Ind.) that passage of the measure would "destroy the Democratic party."

Opponents failed in an effort to attach an amendment by Senator Bankhead (Dem. Ala.) to make it unlawful for any person to contribute more than $1,000 a year to any candidate or campaign committee. The vote was 45 to 36, with 35 Democrats and Senator La Follette (Prog. Wis.) supporting the amendment and 23 Republicans against. A solid bloc of Republican votes provided the margin of defeat.

Minton said the amendment was "aimed at Ernest Weir, the big bootlegging man of the Republican party." Weir, Pennsylvania steel manufacturer, recently was appointed chairman of the Republican Finance Committee.

Minton told Democratic supporters of the Hatch bill they were helping the Republicans play a smart political game that would wreck a Democratic party organization built on politics of the "little fellow" in politics.

"I say to you Democrats," he declared, "when you look across the aisle and see the Republicans 100 per cent for any proposition it isn't good and for the Democratic party."

Minton told reporters he made similar "squawks" to President Roosevelt but that the president listened unsympathetically. Mr. Roosevelt previously had endorsed the principle of the Hatch bill.

Map Shows Soviet War Gains

Large concessions that Russia will gain by terms of the treaty of peace with Finland after 105 days of fighting an undeclared war are shown in the above map.

Finland Seeking Defensive Pact with Norway, Sweden

Small Baltic Country Hopes to Defend Its New Borders and Live in Peace — Baron Mannerheim Is Bitter HELSINKI —(AP)—Finland, mourning its peace with the grief of the vanquished, was given hope of saving its independence and protecting its short borders through the prospect of a defensive pact with Sweden and Norway, and was exhorted by its government to rise from its "state of mutilation" through unity.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner, after a national broadcast to the people, told the foreign press that conversations looking to a defensive alliance with the two large Scandinavian states, already arranged but halted by the war, would be started soon. The initiative in this, he said, came from Finland.

Earlier, with their mourning etched against a background of softly falling snow, the Finns had heard Tanner declare that Finland's defense against Russia had foundered on the "unwillingness or inability" of Sweden and Norway, (and behind them the western allies), to send troops or allow troops to cross their soil.

"All that can be said against us," he added, sadly, "is that as a nation we are too small."

The defensive alliance, if it is effected, would be intended to protect its independence and boundaries of Sweden, Norway and Finland from aggression—mainly, it is presumed, Russian or German.

Mannerheim Bitter

Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim in a final order of the day declared bitterly Thursday that Finland had "paid to the very last penny any debt we may have owed to the west."

The aged leader, who estimated that 200,000 Russians and 15,000 Finns were slain in the 105-day war said, however: "We are proudly conscious of the historic duty which we will continue to fulfill: Defense of that western civilization which has been our heritage for centuries."

(Baron Mannerheim apparently meant at Finland had held the fort for the western democracies for three and a half months despite the fact

280,000 Dead in Russo-Finn War

Number of Injured Is Estimated to Be 285,000

COPENHAGEN —(AP)—More than half a million men were killed or wounded in the 105 days of the Finnish-Russian war, foreign military observers estimated.

They placed the total of 565,000 divided as follows:

Russians—250,000 dead, 250,000 wounded.

Finns—30,000 dead, 35,000 wounded.

The sub-zero cold accounted for the unusual high ratio of dead to wounded. Many soldiers incapacitated by their wounds died in the cold.

Security Act Lessens Employer's Interest in Ages

TEXARKANA, Ark. — Wage earners in their sixties are going to find employers "less interested" in their ages, John H. Cooter, manager of the Social Security Board's field office at Texarkana said Thursday.

He explained that this is a result of the recent revision of the Social Security Act making "old-age and survivors insurance taxes payable regardless of the age of the employee."

"Before the act was amended," said Mr. Cooter, "an employer was required to turn in the taxes in connection with this system only until the employee was 65 years old. This tax, based on the worker's wages is now 1 per cent each for employer and employee. After 65, the age at which the worker might qualify for old-age insurance payments, his wage formerly was not subject to the tax."

"The employer, therefore, had to know when a man had reached the age of 65, so that he could stop sending the taxes—his own and that deducted from the employee's pay—to the collector of internal revenue."

"But the revised law has removed this age barrier. Sixty-five remains the age after which a worker, whenever he chooses to retire, may claim his insurance payments, if he is qualified. But he now has the right to continue to accumulate wage credits in the years beyond that age."

"Since the taxes will continue to be collected as long as he is paid wages, regardless of his age, all the employer needs to know now is that the man is still on his payroll."

Mr. Cooter's office is located at 406-08 Federal Building.

Deny Finns Passed

Tanner, to the newspapermen, denied that the western powers had pressed Finland to continue the war; gave them thanks for "large quantities" of war material "although they had no obligation to Finland; and expressed gratitude to the United States for monetary aid and for the volunteers who have come from America."

Asked if he thought Wednesday's peace was an interlude, he replied: "I can't answer."

He disclosed, however that this "unhappy peace" was made without consultation with the army command.

"Peace," he explained, "is a political question. We did not ask the army headquarters about it. The only thing we asked was the position on the front."

Despite the treaty stipulation for ratification by the Finnish diet within three days, Tanner said this might take two weeks.

After the lull of the armistice at 11 a. m. (2 a. m. Central standard time), it became known that some of the fiercest fighting of the war took place in the final hours before peace.

When the fighting ceased suddenly, the men who a few minutes before had been in the midst of battle were stunned by the quiet.

In the 7 1/2 hours between the signing of the peace treaty and the armistice the Russians and Finns were attacking and counter-attacking on three fronts and air forces of both sides were active.

Reds Seek Trade Pact With Italy

Russia Is Attempting to Make Friends in the South

ROME —(AP)—Russia was authoritatively reported to be following up her successful conclusion of her war with Finland by initiating trade negotiations with Italy in an attempt to win friends in the south.

The new negotiations were reported impending after a day in which Germany agreed to supply Italy with most of her coal needs by rail to circumvent the British blockade and in which the fascist chamber approved army and navy budgets totaling $378,600,000.

Authoritative sources said a Russian trade commission, which has headquarters at Milan, may come to Rome shortly to start negotiations for a new treaty. The head of the commission was reported already to have left Moscow for final instructions.

Tornado Hits Louisiana, Eastern Texas

Tornadoes which twisted across western Louisiana and eastern Texas claimed 17 lives and caused damage in excess of $1,000,000. Shown above is one of many homes in Shreveport, La., wrecked by the storm. Occupants of the house were at a movie when the tornado struck.

Rehabilitation of Shreveport Area

Disaster Chairman in Appeal to Help the Homeless

SHREVEPORT, La. —(AP)—Rehabilitation of whole sections of the city flattened by a tornado, began as the Red Cross prepared to aid the homeless.

The freakish winds which whirled men, women and children through the air, killed 10 persons here Wednesday and moved into Texas, killing three more between Elysian Fields and Be-the-haven.

At least 40 persons were injured. Property damage was estimated at $1,300,000. Approximately 500 homes were wrecked. The tornado, first fatal one to strike the city in 28 years, followed exactly the same course pursued by a similar wind in 1912.

Disaster Chairman E. B. Weiss of the Shreveport chapter of the Red Cross, appealed for funds to help the homeless. Another survey was under way by the Disaster Loan Corporation.

In Washington, Representative Brooks (Dem., La.) asked James H. Crutcher, Louisiana WPA administrator, to render all possible aid.

CCC youths and National Guardsmen guarded the devastated area. Mayor Sam Caldwell sent city workmen to clear up the debris.

Heaviest property loss was at the Libby-Owens-Ford Company's huge glass factory. Damage there was $200,000. The State fair grounds were damaged $100,000.

When the 1912 tornado hit the city, it damaged the home of A. J. Mannerheim and killed his infant daughter and her nurse. Tuesday the wind struck his home again, taking no life but causing $12,000 damage.

Betty Ann Baugass, nine, sitting at home with her parents Mr. and Mrs. John M. Baugass, was picked up by the winds from the lap of her mother and carried through the roof.

She landed in the street with lacerations and possible internal injuries. Her parents were carried hundreds of yards through the air and dumped, lifeless, in a field. The tornado dealt the same fate to two of their neighbors, Mrs. Hettie Armstrong and E. G. Woodard.

Officers at Barksdale Field, army air post, said at least 30 big tri-motored bombers were damaged. Damage to airfield buildings and quarters totaled $10,000.

F. D.'s Decision to Depend On Report

London Newspaper Talks of Third Term for President

LONDON —(AP)—While Sumner Welles was winding up his talks with British leaders, the London Daily Mail declared the president's decision on a third term depends on Welles' report.

"If there were a chance of producing a plan for peace parleys in Europe, and eventually a world conference of all nations, President Roosevelt would be ready to throw his weight into the balance, and then retire from the White House in autumn at the end of his second term," the editorial said. "But should there be no peace conference, Welles' report and the developments into a fierce European struggle, President Roosevelt will certainly run for a third term."

The newspaper said the American undersecretary of state, here after talks in Rome, Berlin and Paris; had "so far found no foundation on which the slightest peace plan could be constructed."

Welles talked with David Lloyd George, World War prime minister; and had other appointments with the British high commissioner, Stanley M. Bruce; Laborite James Maxton and Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden. He had dates for luncheon at the United States embassy with Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and his staff and for dinner at No. 10 Downing street, Prime Minister Chamberlain's residence.

Welles will leave for home Friday traveling by way of Rome where a final conference with Premier Mussolini is in prospect.

Litigation Taken to High Tribunal

Group Is Seeking to Prevent Operation Filling Station

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—A group of Texarkana homeowners have carried to the state supreme court a fight to prevent operation of a gasoline filling station in their neighborhood.

They appealed dismissal by Miller County Chancellor A. P. Steel of their suit for an injunction to prevent Mr. and Mrs. John W. Holman and the Texas company from operating the station at Seventh and Bech streets.

Those protesting the state are Mrs. Albert A. Van Hovenberg, Mrs. May B. Dale, D. C. Harrington, Kenneth Stewart, Mrs. Max Scherer and Mrs. Florence W. Head.

They declared the value of their property for residential purposes was destroyed by construction of the station. The suit charged that a majority of the city council of which Holman is a member, did not vote in favor of issuing the permit for construction.

The homeowners declared Beech had been strictly a residential street since 1878, several blocks removed from Texarkana's business district.

Chancellor Steel, in dismissing their injunctive suit for want of equity, provided that his decree would not preclude the property owners from suing for damages or to abate any nuisance created in the operation of the filling station.

is going a little too far when he sets out to discover intimate details about family life. Even if they might not howl quite so loudly if there were any assurance that the information gathered would be kept strictly confidential. But they fail to see how anyone can reasonably expect some tens of thousands of census takers to keep juicy tidbits of neighborhood interest under their hats.

But look at the Census Bureau's view point. Theoretically, every scrap of information gathered will be as confidential and as sacred as the secret of the state. Questions are not designed to embarrass housewives, nor to snoop purposelessly into private matters. All that is wanted is more data on American life than has ever been collected before with a view toward establishing a rich fund for statistics on resources.

How can social and economic advances be brought about, they ask, unless the people interested know to what extent change is needed? How can America know what America needs unless exhaustive and authoritative figures are on file?

Whatever questions are finally approved for submission to the populace, chances are, they won't be much trouble so long as the canvassers remain courteous. Residents have a right to expect Uncle Sam's representative to be, at least as, considerate as a shoe-store peddler. The reason James Russell, the Kenosha, Wis., shoe repairman, refused to answer questions in a preliminary survey, he told authorities, "after his arrest, was that the census man wasn't polite."

The great majority of citizens will want to co-operate. They will expect the census takers to do the same.

Trouble With the Census Man

Biggest difficulty in the current squabble over the forth-coming diennial census is that there ARE two sides to the question.

Critics of the setup as established by the Census Bureau point out that the canvassers are straying a long way from the simple constitutional provision which provides for nothing more complicated than counting heads. They wouldn't mind a few of the questions that census takers intend to ask citizens, but they think Uncle Sam is going a little too far when he sets out to discover intimate details about family life. Even if they might not howl quite so loudly if there were any assurance that the information gathered would be kept strictly confidential. But they fail to see how anyone can reasonably expect some tens of thousands of census takers to keep juicy tidbits of neighborhood interest under their hats.

But look at the Census Bureau's view point. Theoretically, every scrap of information gathered will be as confidential and as sacred as the secret of the state. Questions are not designed to embarrass housewives, nor to snoop purposelessly into private matters. All that is wanted is more data on American life than has ever been collected before with a view toward establishing a rich fund for statistics on resources.

How can social and economic advances be brought about, they ask, unless the people interested know to what extent change is needed? How can America know what America needs unless exhaustive and authoritative figures are on file?

Whatever questions are finally approved for submission to the populace, chances are, they won't be much trouble so long as the canvassers remain courteous. Residents have a right to expect Uncle Sam's representative to be, at least as, considerate as a shoe-store peddler. The reason James Russell, the Kenosha, Wis., shoe repairman, refused to answer questions in a preliminary survey, he told authorities, "after his arrest, was that the census man wasn't polite."

The great majority of citizens will want to co-operate. They will expect the census takers to do the same.

Children Not Likely to Become Sick

Because They Play at Being "Patients"

Children naturally love to play at games in which they imitate their elders. One of the most common is the game of "doctor and nurse" in which, of course there must also be a patient.

Many parents become seriously alarmed when children play at being sick because of the common superstition that they will sooner or later actually become ill. For the same reason, many parents prevent children from playing at games with the idea that the old games of "cops and robbers" is likely to lead to a felonious career.

This is symbolic magic. From all discussions of this type, it is necessary to separate the influence of the power of suggestion. Relief of this type can be so powerful in the human mind as to suppress even attempts at some of the greatest new discoveries that may be made.

For instance, when Edward Jenner first announced the possibility that smallpox might be prevented by inoculating individuals with materials from cowpox, all sorts of cartoons began to be distributed showing human beings gradually changing into cows—growing horns and tails, and even developing a hairy coat. There was not the slightest reason to believe that such changes would occur. People forgot that every day they themselves were eating large amounts of beef, and that they were not turning into cows.

While many an educator is opposed to having children see movies or plays in which crime is depicted, even though the moral may always be, "crime does not pay," there are others who believe that children who have no criminal tendencies are not likely to become criminals merely because they enjoy playing "cops and robbers."

There is a much better argument against too much attention to crime—that the time might be better spent in more constructive employments.

The Price of Joy

You don't begrudge the labor when the roses start to bloom.
You don't recall the dreary days that won you their perfume;
You don't recall a single care
You spent upon the garden there;
And all the toil
Of tilling soil
Is quite forgot the day the first
Pink rosebuds into beauty burst.
You don't begrudge the trials grim
When joy has come to you;
When all your skies are blue;
And though you've trod a weary mile
The ache of it was all worth while;
And all the stings
And bitter flings
Are wiped away upon the day
Success comes dancing down your way.

At each season of the year we have shrubs or flowers making splashes of color against the back ground of sweeping lawns or a setting of graceful trees, at the present time that lovely flowering shrub, the japonica, a close rival of the azalea, that helps attract flower-lovers on a southern pillowage has now donned its lovely colorful gown shading from delicate pink to a rich deep red they brighten drab corners at so little expense, for our fore fathers, as it were, and one has only to go to some old house place and there you will find them growing and blooming after years of neglect. Their roots grow so deep they are great drought resisters, and there fore very satisfactory. We have them flaunting their colors in the yard of every flower lover in the city, each and every spring it seems to the writer they have increased in number and have an added beauty for wherever you drive or walk within or near the city you are greeted by this colorful and soul inspiring glooming shrub. If you haven't a japonica in your yard, get one, two or even three, for they are never so attractive as in a hedge.

THE STORY OF DEMOCRACY

By Hendrik Willem van Loon
Illustrated by the author

The Monarchies Sprouted From Roots Deep in the Democracies of the Early Days

Why didn't the masses of people drive away the usurper and re-establish their own democratic form of government?

Chapter Ten
There was one other reason why Democracies were so slow to develop. Democracy as a form of government is very apt to be extremely wasteful. And if we are to draw what ever lessons history offers us upon the subject, we feel inclined to come to the conclusion that in our modern world, only very prosperous countries can afford to maintain a democratic form of government.

This, of course, did not hold true of a few of the agricultural Democracies of the Middle Ages, such as the Swiss cantons and in Iceland and here and there among tribes which inhabited the vast northern plain of Europe's mainland. But these were hardly Democracies in our sense of the word. They were small agricultural communities, composed entirely of free and independent farmers.

Since all of them were about equally rich, none of them were able to dominate the life of their neighbors. But the moment this happy balance was upset by the introduction of commerce, there was an end to this beautiful dream of equality.

Furthermore let there be rumors of danger from abroad and immediately some strong man would be elected to act as leader. Once he had been victorious, he was apt to have gained so much power and prestige that it was practically impossible to dislodge him.

Such indeed was the beginning of every mediaval monarchy as it is of all our modern dictatorships.

"But why," as we are so apt to ask over here where we have only once been caught in a crisis, which has threatened our national existence, "why didn't the masses of the people object, drive away the usurper and re-establish their old democratic form of government?"

Because there exists that terrible thing in the world which is known as human lethargy and this particular for most lethargy deadens all such "courageous" efforts with the plausible excuse that one had better "leave well enough alone" and that it is wiser not to upset the existing state of affairs as long as it does not interfere too directly with the comforts of the Average Man.

A wise man once remarked that all slavery is self-imposed. In the main, I fear that he was right.

One will come across arguments like this in almost all the writings upon the subject of Democracy of the last twenty-five hundred years. And believe me, it was not only the professional pessimists who spoke that way.

Even out-and-out lovers of Democracy were upset by their fear that most people are either too indifferent or too sadly lacking in a feeling of independence to take care of their own interests, an that therefore they would invariably take the conduct of their affairs out and leave the promise to relieve them of all further feeling of responsibility.

You will come across such doubts in the writings of almost all the men who founded our own Republic. They believed passionately in the ideal of Democracy.

But they realized that it was by far the most difficult and exacting form of government. An therefore they asked themselves, will the great mass of people ever make the personal sacrifices necessary to maintain a state of affairs which demands that each and every one of them be forever on the job, defending the ramparts from the enemies both from outside the walls and from the inside?

NEXT: It's always a Battle Between Democracy and "The Easter Way."

Gloating over the Queen Elizabeth voyage, Winston Churchill will soon be heard shouting across the English channel, "nya, nya you can't catch me."

Prisoners in Germany Get "Joy" Packages

LONDON —(P)— The Britisher at home now can send post-free "joy" packages to interned relatives and prisoners of war in Germany.

They will be repacked by the British Red Cross, which has advised senders to stick to knitted goods, shaving gear, tobacco, and bar chocolate. Other food, games and books are banned. Packages will be censored.

Each prisoner is allowed one 11-pound package every three months.

Both sides want the honor of the sending Rumania, so King Carol is calling up more troops just in case the belligerents decide to do the defending in Rumanian territory.

State Teachers Drop
Opening Game By
Score 45 to 33

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—A smooth passing band of cagers from the deep South, Delta State College of Cleveland, Miss., swished into the second round of the National inter-collegiate basketball tournament with a 43 to 31 victory over Dakota Wesleyan university, Mitchell, S. D.

In the day's earlier contests Kansas Wesleyan eliminated Arkansas State of Conway, Ark. 45 to 33; Peru, Neb. State Teachers dropped Augustana college of Rock Island, Ill. 49 to 46; and Superior, Wis. Teachers proved superior to Upper Iowa university, 55 to 42.

Only 14 fouls were called in the Delta-Dakota contest in contrast to the 39 in the Kansas Wesleyan-Arkansas game which preceded it.

Tuesday night's four games complete the first round and cut the field to 16 games. The 1939 title was won by Southwestern college of Winfield, Kas.

Warrensburg, Mo. Teachers, at least a semi-finalist in each of the preceding tournaments, was eliminated by the Texas Wesleyan team of Fort Worth, 40 to 36.

The Missouri Mules were woefully outclassed in the first half, which ended with the victors leading, 29 to 9.

Maryville, Mo. Teachers, one of the pre-meet favorites, worked through to a 45 to 44 triumph over a determined Simpson college team from Indianola, Iowa.

The Iowans outscored the Missourians from the field, but their inaccurate play from the free throw line cost them the decision after leading at the half, 18 to 11.

SALINA, Kans.—(P)—There are people who think the left hind foot of a rabbit is as sure to bring good luck as a four-leaf clover.

So there should be plenty of luck for a Salina firm which has the left hind foot of 27,000 jackrabbits purchased with rabbit hides this winter.

In case you might want one, they are free for the asking with this reminder from the management: "They didn't bring the rabbits any particularly good luck."

Sunday's cake should last through Monday. But here's one that will stay moist right through the week.

One cup sugar, 1-2 cup shortening, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1-2 cup New Orleans molasses, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup boiling water, 1-3-4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons cocoa, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream sugar and shortening. Add the beaten eggs, molasses and the soda which has been dissolved in boiling water. Then add the dry ingredients which have been sifted together, and lastly the vanilla. Bake in well-greased cake pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 40 minutes. Top with frosting or whipped cream. This cake will remain moist for a week.

Ribbon Cake
Two-thirds cup butter, 1-2 cups sugar, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 3-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon cloves, 1-8 teaspoon mace, 1-1-2 tablespoons molasses, 1-3 cup raisins, 1 glass currant jelly.

Cream butter, add sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks one at a time and beat well after each addition. Add sifted flour, baking powder and salt alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill 2 greased and paper-lined layer pans with 2-3 mixture. To remaining third add spices, molasses, and fruit. Pour into greased and paper-lined layer pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 25 minutes. Place spice layer between light layers with currant jelly between and seven-minute or boiled icing on top and sides of cake.

Radio Inventor to Be Honored

AP Feature Service
GLOGGNA, Italy—A monumental tomb memorializing Guglielmo Marconi is to be family villa Pontecchio, near Bologna, where the inventor carried out his first experiments in wireless telegraphy.

A wide open space surrounded with cypress and fir will be laid out on the sloping ground below the villa. Plans call for an open crypt in the center containing the sarcophagus where the remains of Marconi will have their final resting place. A bust of the scientist will stand on a low column in front of the colonnaded entrance to the villa. The monument is scheduled for completion by July 20, 1940, the second anniversary of Marconi's death. The Marconi villa will become a museum for relics of Marconi's studies and researches.

Rents were first made payable in money in England in 1135.

Speaking About Income Taxes — How'd You Like to Be in England?

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — The traditional March 15 solace offered to Americans who grouse over income taxes should be more consoling than ever this year. Our so-called English cousins, who always have carried a much heavier income tax load, are no whit even harder. The British government has boosted the standard tax rate from 35 to 37.5 per cent and has reduced exemptions.

It's the little fellow in this country who gets off easy—or doesn't pay any income tax at all—compared with the British.

An English married couple with a wage income of $2,000 a year pays a tax of $246. An American couple with an earned income of $2,800—$800 more than the English couple—pays 80 cents.

Exemptions

The small wage earner in England is socked in two ways: Only a very low income is exempt and the beginning tax rate is high, 18.75 per cent compared with 4 per cent here. Britain's 37.5 per cent takes effect on taxable income above $400 while our 4 per cent is standard on all income brackets.

British personal exemptions are $400 income to a single person, $680 to a married couple and $200 for each dependent child; U. S. exemptions are $1,000 for a single person, $2,500 for a married couple and $400 for each dependent.

Here's a striking example of how a middle class American family profits from these exemptions while its British counterpart has to eat a big chunk: J. English S. Smith, with a wife and three children and earning $4,000 in a year, pays a tax of $646. Henry American Brown, with the same-sized family and identical earnings, doesn't pay any federal income tax.

It works this way for the Browns: The $2,500 head of family exemption, plus $1,200 for the three children, plus an earned income credit of $400—10 per cent of $4,000—provides total deductions of $4,100.

Even with the state income tax to pay, the Browns are sitting pretty compared with the J. English Smiths. If they live in New York state, which has a comparatively high income levy, their tax would be only $6. And that's assuming they have no special allowable deductions.

The disparity between the two countries is not so great in the very high income brackets although the "big boys" in Britain get stiffer wallop. An English bachelor with an investment income of $800,000 a year must give some $603,000 of it to his government. A single American with an equivalent income from investment pays $528,240.

Good Old Days

When our federal income tax system was inaugurated in 1913 the income tax was already "old stuff" to Britons. Way back in 1692 John Bull imposed a tax upon salaries. It yielded scant revenue and died out but was revived a century later.

The 1913 United States levy was much lighter than today's tax. The standard rate was 1 per cent, the maximum surtax rate was 6 per cent and personal exemptions were $3,000 to the unmarried and $4,000 to the married.

SERIAL STORY $15 A WEEK BY LOUISE HOLMES

CHAPTER XXII

It was during that rainy week that Clara confided her wedding plans. She and Roy Swenson were to be married on Saturday of the following week.

Ann made a dress for her, and a cunning little hat. Knowing that she must find another room, she let her plans ride, waiting until she should see Paul again. That next meeting might mean anything.

She saw him on Thursday night and the rainy daze was no more. He seemed almost to dislike her. He informed her, quite coldly, that he had been transferred to Moline, that he was leaving within a few days.

Ann couldn't know of his sleepless nights, that, in desperation, he had gone to the manager and asked to be transferred. The kiss in the park had done it. "I can't kid myself any longer," was the way Paul had put it to himself.

Ann felt that a door, through which she had glimpsed happiness, had been rudely slammed in her face. She almost felt that Paul had slapped her. Even then she felt no resentment toward Paul. He had stated his convictions fairly and squarely and she had promised to abide by them. It was her own fault if she had taken a casual kiss too seriously. She managed to put up a brave front.

"Does it mean a promotion for you, Paul?" she asked, ignoring the real issue, the personal issue. "Maybe a little—I'm not sure."

They were standing on the steps of the rooming house. About to start for a walk, Ann had stopped short at his announcement.

"Could we go to a movie?" she asked. In a movie she needn't talk.

"Sure," he said.

Neither Ann nor Paul could have told a single detail of the picture. For three hours they sat side by side, eyes on the silver screen, not speaking. Then they were again back on the rooming house steps. They stood silently until the two furtive-eyed young men who lived on the second floor passed inside.

"I don't like the look of those kids," Paul remarked, for some time better to say.

"I have the feeling they're up to no good," Ann agreed absently. It was hard going. After a moment, Ann said, "Will I see you again?"

"I'll try to make it. Pretty busy—getting packed and everything."

"I suppose you are."

"Well—" He took a step away from her.

Ann bit her lip, hard. "Best of luck, Paul."

"Thank you. And you, Ann—things have got to break for you. You're the tops—you've got what it takes—the kind fates will catch up with you—I know they will."

"Will they?" she asked childishly.

"They've got to." He held out his hand. "Goodbye, Ann."

She put hers in it and quickly drew it away. "Goodbye, Paul."

FRIDAY and Saturday were unendurable days. Clara announced Paul's departure from the store. It was all over.

On Sunday Ann's troubles were pushed aside by the newspaper headlines. Florabelle's friend, Clancy, had been murdered in an apartment hotel. Florabelle had been arrested for the crime. Clancy's widow was flying from Omaha.

The girls gathered in the hall, looking with fearful eyes at the closed door of Florabelle's apartment. Even Neddy and Teddy were serious. Clara cried, "Ann, I feel sick. Florabelle went through the second floor hall, muttering to herself that she'd always known Florabelle would come to the gallows, that she kept a respectable house and she wouldn't put up with such goings on. Myrtle crouched in a corner, her eyes big and hunted."

It was a strange day in the rooming house. Florabelle sent for clothes and Ann packed a bag. She would never forget that few minutes with Florabelle in the city jail. Locked doors, barred windows, guards—horrible.

"I didn't do it, Ann," the girl said. She was no longer a girl. Her face was ravaged and old. "But that's what I get for playing with fire. Keep away from men, kid—men like Clancy."

Ann tried to encourage her. "They'll find the right one soon, Florabelle. Keep hoping."

"I don't know who did it," Florabelle said through tight lips. "I was tight—we were all tight—somebody put the gun in my hand—"

Ann went away, so depressed that she could scarcely drag herself up the El stairs. The next day passed with no good word but on Tuesday the load was lifted. Ann's prophesy had been well founded. Clancy's murderer was

By JERRY BRONDFIELD NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Bill Bingham, Harvard athletic director, has an idea which if put into effect would be of great aid to undermanned football teams that find themselves going against squads three deep at every position.

Bingham would limit the number of players participating in one game to 25 for each team. "That many," he claims, "would be more than enough to take care of substitutions necessitated by injury or exhaustion, but it's still low enough to prevent a power-laden squad from grinding a thinly manned team into the ground merely by weight of numbers."

Bingham hastens to emphasize that this does not regulate the size of squad as a whole. Schools lucky enough to have 40 to 50 players could still make use of all but the men would have to be distributed over the season.

Admits Harvard, Yale Have Player Shortage

"Only 15 players are allowed to dress for a hockey game and I earnestly believe football would be a much fairer game if we adopted something along that plan with the 25-player limit," says the Crimson athletic chief.

Under such a system Bingham believes the smaller schools would make a much better showing against the big-things. He candidly admits that Harvard and Yale, both of which never can muster more than 20 players of varsity caliber, would benefit greatly.

"After all," he asserts, "the purpose of the game should be to demonstrate which has the better team—not the strongest squad. It isn't a good sight to see one of those power-houses from the Big Ten or far west roll over some of their not-so-fortunate foes. Spectators don't like it. And it's asking too much of a physically tired boy to face wave after wave of reinforcements."

The 25-player limit, according to Bingham, would also help prevent boys with minor injuries from dressing for the game, thus removing temptation

"I ALWAYS BUY ARCADIAN NITRATE, the American SODA, for the same good reasons that I always trade in my home town. I know that my neighbors will give me good quality at a fair price. They want my friendship and my business for many years to come."

"Since homefolks started making ARCADIAN right here in the South, we have been getting better soda in a better bag at a lower price. During the 11 years that the big American nitrate plant has been operating at Hopewell, Virginia, the price of nitrate of soda has come down 40 per cent. And, under present conditions, it's good to know we have an American supply of soda."
